

Helen Macpherson

Partner, Baker Mackenzie

Helen has 20 years' experience as an intellectual property litigation and dispute resolution specialist, advising on all types of intellectual property including patents, trademarks, plant variety rights, copyright, moral rights and confidential information. Helen has had a strong focus in her career working with clients on high-value patent disputes involving complex technologies. Helen's patent dispute work has encompassed disputes in the technical fields of inorganic, organic, physical and process chemistry, biochemistry, biotechnology (including genetics, molecular biology and virology) and electrical, electronic and mechanical engineering. Helen regularly advises her patent clients on the preparation and execution of patent infringement, revocation and amendment strategies, including in the context of multijurisdictional patent disputes, as well as on the impact of relevant regulatory frameworks on these strategies and on freedom to operate and patentability issues.
