

Cathie Blanchfield

Principal, Blanchfield Nicholls Family & Private Advisory

Cathie Blanchfield is a leading family and divorce lawyer and has practiced exclusively in family law and related areas since admission over 30 years ago. After some years in partnership with Stuart Fowler, in 2007 Cathie established Blanchfield Nicholls with Nigel Nicholls. Cathie has been named as a leading family lawyer in the Doyles Guide consistently since 2016, including in High Value and Complex Property Matters. She maintains a particular interest in financial agreements under the Family Law Act and regularly drafts and advises clients in those matters. She enjoys the challenges inherent in communicating sometimes difficult concepts in family law and working to understand each client's particular needs and expectations while giving realistic advice. Cathie has written and presented many papers on family law issues for members of the profession undertaking continuing legal education.
