Partner, Clayton Utz

Amanda Lyros is an experienced adviser in all aspects of employment law.

Her practice spans the full spectrum of the employment life cycle from hiring through to firing, including sensitive discrimination and harassment matters, and complex executive engagements and terminations. She frequently guides her clients on the employment aspects of mergers, acquisitions and restructures, and represents them in contentious employee litigation.

Amanda is also a recognised whistleblowing expert, having been invited by the Senate Economics Committee to participate in the development of the new whistleblowing laws. She routinely handles complex whistleblowing complaints, litigation and investigations, and has advised Commonwealth Bank in landmark whistleblowing proceedings, as well as a large number of listed, public and private companies on their whistleblowing policies and programs.
