Mimi Su has over 14 years legal experience in wills, trusts, superannuation and estates. She specialises in complex estate planning for high-net worth individuals and business/family succession matters.

She has extensive experience in advising clients on testamentary trusts, special disability trusts, unit trusts and discretionary trusts and has seen the countless problems that can arise. She has successfully assisted families with the complex issues of inter-generational wealth transfer and minimising the risks of disputes down the track.

In addition, Mimi Su regularly advises clients in relation to contested estate matters appearing before the Supreme Court in family provision claims, capacity issues, undue influence and trust disputes. She has also assisted many clients with superannuation disputes involving the Superannuation Complaints Tribunal and also the Guardianship Division of NCAT.

She has a Master of Law specialising in taxation which compliments her previous work experience at a big four accounting firm employed in their Tax Division. Her taxation expertise means that she can provide the necessary tax conscious advice for clients with complex family group structures and asset holdings.
