

Dora Chan

Professional Support Solicitor, The Law Society of New South Wales

Dora is admitted as a solicitor/legal practitioner in Hong Kong, UK and NSW, Australia. Before working with the Law Society, Dora had worked as a private practitioner specializing in real property matters with the Hong Kong and Sydney offices of an international law firm, a government counsel with the Department of Justice in Hong Kong, a law lecturer with the University of Hong Kong and a teaching fellow with the University of NSW. She is well-versed in statutory interpretation and legislation compliance. Dora's skills and working experiences have enabled her to provide practical and useful guidance to solicitors on complying with the Legal Profession Uniform Law (NSW) and its Rules, writing educational articles and to giving CPD presentations.
