Day 2 – Government Solicitors

Key Government Cases - A Year in Review

About Christine Lithgow

Christine Lithgow is a law firm principal with a broad and extensive career in public and private practice. Christine has held General Counsel and Executive roles in Government, most recently in Transport for NSW, as well as leadership roles in private practice.

Christine graduated with honours in law and commenced her career with Freehills (now Herbert Smith Freehills) in 1989. She jumped ship to join a NSW Government client in 1993, a move that really shaped her career. Her role in Government gave her deep insights and experience into public sector management, procurement and contract management at a time when Governments across the board were testing the limits of outsourcing and private investment.

With the benefit of that experience, Christine went on, over her career, to establish and lead two law firms, become a partner in another as well as serving in the public sector for extended periods. Christine is currently a member of the Law Society Government Solicitors Committee and the Public Law Committee.
