Day 2 –In-House Corporate Lawyers

Gatekeeper, guardian of the moral conscience and lion tamer – in-house lawyers who walk the ethical tightrope

About Aggie Maisano

Aggie is a Fellow of the Cranlana Centre for Ethical Leadership having completed the Vincent Fairfax Ethical Leadership Program. Aggie was awarded a Fellowship of Monash University in 2021.

Aggie's career spans over two decades where she held regional and national roles with two major accounting firms in portfolios of governance, ethics and regulatory; providing guidance and counsel to partners and staff across 12 countries. This required navigating different ethical, cultural, legal and political issues to support firms at different stages of development.

Aggie serves on the Ethics Committee of the Law Society of NSW and the Human Research Ethics Committee of the South Eastern Sydney Local Health District. Aggie is a passionate supporter of the Australian Brandenburg Orchestra and is delighted to serve as a Director of the Brandenburg Foundation. Aggie is developing her skills as an amateur photographer!

Aggie was recognised in the Australasian Lawyer Elite Women 2023 rankings amongst the leading women 'who have made a profound and meaningful impact on the field of law.'
