

Tanya Chapman

Senior Associate, Turner Freeman Lawyers

Tanya Chapman has been practising in Wills, Estates and Elder Law since 2015, with particular experience in estate planning, elder law, and family provision claims. Her work encompasses estate litigation, including disputes involving elder law and elder abuse. She also advises on retirement living issues, helping clients navigate complex family accommodation arrangements.

Before admission to legal practice in 2010, Tanya was a Senior Content Developer in the College of Law's Applied Masters program.

Tanya is the creator and host of the Just in Case Law podcast – a podcast that covers interesting Australian legal cases. She lectures and tutors in Elder Law at Western Sydney University, is co-chair of the Hunter Central Coast Elder Abuse Prevention Collaborative, and is a member of the Advisory Board to the Ageing and Disability Commissioner and the Law Society's Specialist Accreditation Elder Law Advisory Committee.
