

Helping you transition into an in-house role

Dates: 23 June 2026 | Venue: The Law Society of NSW, Level 3, 170 Philip Street, Sydney

About the program

The transition into an in-house role presents an exciting opportunity to develop new skills and change the way you practise law. As with every change, while you embrace the opportunities, you might also face some challenges.

To support you during this transition, the Law Society is pleased to invite you to join us at our Moving In-House: Practice essentials program. This exclusive program will be offered in-person at the Law Society of NSW for a full day on 23 June 2026.

Throughout the course of the day you will hear from in-house legal experts and senior Law Society solicitors on a range of important topics for practitioners who are moving into corporate legal practice. This includes ethical dilemmas relevant to in-house legal practice, legal operations and project management, the latest important substantive law updates, and career mapping for in-house lawyers. This program will give you practical guidance and tips on how to successfully navigate the transition and ensure you have the foundations to forge a rewarding in-house career.

We look forward to welcoming you.
