

Cameron Player, Executive Director, Dispute Resolution Service

Cameron Player's passion for personal injury law and strong customer service focus has led him to managing a number of high profile projects across NSW Government.

Delivering to the people of NSW for more than 15 years, Cameron has worked in and led alternative to Court dispute resolution services across the NSW compulsory third party, workers compensation, and lifetime care schemes.

He most recently played a leading role in designing and developing the new Dispute Resolution Service, a more customer focused, more inquisitorial dispute resolution model aimed at resolving disputes in a less adversarial, more digitally enabled way.

Cameron is a lawyer and an Accredited Specialist in Personal Injury Law, having worked in private practice as a solicitor and Partner in a Sydney CBD and suburban law firm.

He is an active member of the NSW Law Society, Australian Institute of Judicial Administrators and Council of Australasian Tribunals and a volunteer Sydney Junior Rugby Union Judiciary Member.
