

Lisa Butler, Director and Founder of The Talea Group

Lisa Butler is an in-demand specialist trainer and facilitator, successful business owner, author, and respected keynote speaker.

Her forte is her ability to create and deliver unique training programs for clients to help them improve their business capability and talent pool. She excels at developing tailored training and practical workplace learning in strategic and consultative selling, networking, public speaking and business planning.

Following a successful career in professional and financial services Lisa joining a boutique consulting company focusing on professional service and financial services industries. From this platform she co-founded Paragon Associates, a leading provider of communication training and development, and public learning programs. Later the company evolved into The Talea Group, pulling together several specialist providers that can help make the difference to individual and organisational successes.

Her expertise is drawn from strong practical knowledge along with theoretical knowledge acquired from her Masters in Organisational Psychology.

Lisa is also an articulate and warm keynote speaker who provides intelligent, thought provoking and motivational speeches and presentations for clients, conferences and panels. She is also author of the best-selling book – Networking Exposed.