

About our presenter

Linden Barnes

Linden Barnes is an ethics solicitor at the Law Society and is responsible for providing guidance to the profession on their professional ethical obligations. She regularly presents on ethics to solicitors practising in all types of practice models, including sole practices, major firms, government and in-house. She commenced her career in insurance litigation and then moved in-house, working at major financial organisations.